

---

Carter Craft Boat Registry – Nov - Dec 2015

---

Tis the Season...Which One Are You?

I was looking at the houses as the decorations came out for the Holiday season. It's nice to see the various designs.

I thought of the numerous boat shows I have attended throughout the years and how like the different decorations of the season, so are the different makes and shapes of the boats. I think those of us who own Carter Crafts could name our "season" - "unique". Sometimes the many mahogany Chris Crafts, Century's and Garwood's, although beautiful boats, can sort of blend together and not "catch" the eye. But a Carter Craft, now there's something you don't see every day! I remember when I saw mine on Ebay. Being a "conservative" boat buyer, I just saw it and had to have it... no procrastinating was allowed in my hearts eye. It's not a six figure boat by no means like some at the shows, but when someone comes up to her and says... "That's a neat boat", they just deposited six figures in my pride account!

So I say to all - Happy Holidays to all ....and to all may Carter Craft dreams dance in your head!

Here's an old photo that is striking in design, it reminds me of the car shows such as "Overhulin" where the design concept is drawn and then followed to the creation.

Now this just may be the perfect engine for a Carter Craft! I went to my Firestone dealer and asked for one, they just wanted to sell me tires!?

Even the controls are "art deco" and that bell is just killer!

Can't you just smell the varnish.....

This is a “true boater” which would lend itself to the definition of – “whatever it takes to float on top of the water!”

GOOGLE!

Ever notice this boat is the first one shown when you Google on images?
Wonder whose it is??

This was listed for sale in Birmingham for a cool $9,900.00!

Below is a poem that was in Boating Magazine, sorry for the picture but it was saved with a cell phone....captures our love of old boats quite nicely!

T

